

St. Ambrose University Center for Health Sciences Education Davenport, Iowa

A joint venture by St. Ambrose University and Genesis Medical Center, the new Center for Health Sciences Education will consolidate the academic, laboratory and faculty office space of St. Ambrose's existing health-sciences programs and provide students better access to Genesis Medical Center's clinical opportunities as well as collaborations with its staff. Included within the facility are shared functional labs and "smart" classrooms that will provide students and faculty with leading-edge learning technology, a research library containing the latest publications and access to databases within the health-sciences professions.

